The 19th Airlift Wing Command Post team carries a teammate to demonstrate support during the CLEAR Challenge on April 27 at Little Rock Air Force Base. The goal of the CLEAR Challenge goal is to strengthen commitments to actively support a climate of dignity and respect, recognize and embrace the values and contributions of all members and have some fun along the way.

AF announces changes to Courses 14 and 15

WASHINGTON (AFNS) – Effective immediately, Air Force officials have removed the requirement to complete Courses 14 and 15 for all Airmen serving in the active component. Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve Airmen will have the option to complete their enlisted professional military education through distance learning or in-residence attendance.

Airmen will no longer be required to complete distance learning prior to in-residence attendance at the noncommissioned officer and senior NCO academy. Active component Airmen will complete EPME in-residence, while Guard and Reserve Airmen can complete through DL or in-residence.

“Ultimately, Airmen are always encouraged to focus on their own self-improvement and life-long learning,” said Lt. Gen. Gina Grosso, deputy chief of staff for Manpower, Personnel and Services. “However, because our enlisted members have a 100 percent opportunity to attend in-residence NCO and SNCOA, this change provides Airmen greater flexibility and reduces redundancy in professional military education.”

All active component Airmen currently enrolled in Courses 14 or 15 may continue the course or disenroll. Guard and Reserve Airmen currently enrolled are encouraged to complete the course unless they are currently scheduled to attend in-residence.

“We want to ensure each level of EPME is meaningful to our Airmen and works to further develop them as professionals, warfighters and leaders,” said Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force Kaleth O. Wright. “As we work to evolve our EPME, we have to remain flexible, ensuring we have content and delivery models that work for everyone.”

The decision was based on feedback from the 2017 Enlisted Professional Military Education Triennial Review Committee, EPME working groups, and EPME students and instructors.

The 2018 National Defense Strategy calls on all services to evolve their PME, emphasizing intellectual leadership and military professionalism in the art and science of warfighting, deepening our knowledge of history while embracing new technology and techniques to counter competitors.

“We are working with our teammates at Air Education and Training Command and Air University to enhance our EPME and ensure it meets the intent of our most senior leaders,” Wright said. “We need to ensure that our EPME can evolve over time as technology changes, so to that end we’re working to ensure our content and delivery evolves, too.”

If Airmen choose to remain enrolled and complete the course, completion will be reflected in their personnel records along with the appropriate Community College of the Air Force credits awarded.

Additionally, the enlisted promotion policy remains the same and is not affected by this revision.

Airmen honor legacy of former CSAF by earning Gen. Lew Allen Jr. Award

By Staff Sgt. Rusty Frank

Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

WASHINGTON (AFNS) – Three Airmen received the Gen. Lew Allen Jr. Award from Chief of Staff of the Air Force Gen. David L. Goldfein during a ceremony at the Pentagon, Arlington, Va., on April 27.

“I’m honored for this opportunity to recognize you as some of our top Air Force professionals [who are] living and breathing the logistics business,” said Goldfein. “Our award recipients epitomize a fighting spirit, of pushing through challenges, of leading Airmen to great tasks and of continual improvement. The mission quite frankly can’t happen without you, and you make the impossible, possible.”

This year’s recipients are:

- Lt. Col. Andrew Huntoon, 57th Maintenance Group, Nellis Air Force Base, Nevada, who was unable to attend the ceremony but will receive his award from Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force Gen. Stephen Wilson at a later date.

The award recipients said it was an honor to receive such a prestigious award, giving credit to their Airmen.

“[These awards] are made possible by the hard work and dedication of the outstanding NCO’s and Airmen that I am privileged to lead,” said Saad. “I’m still at a loss for words, but thank you to all that serve and get after this nation’s business. Now, more than ever we need to bond together and keep our core values and creed.”

The annual award, named after the 10th CSAF, recognizes the performance and accomplishments of logistics readiness officers and NCOs.

New program refocuses safety protocol

By Airman 1st Class Rhett Isbell
19th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Little Rock Air Force Base is moving to a risk-based assessment and analysis approach to safety and protection issues known as Enterprise Protection Risk Management.

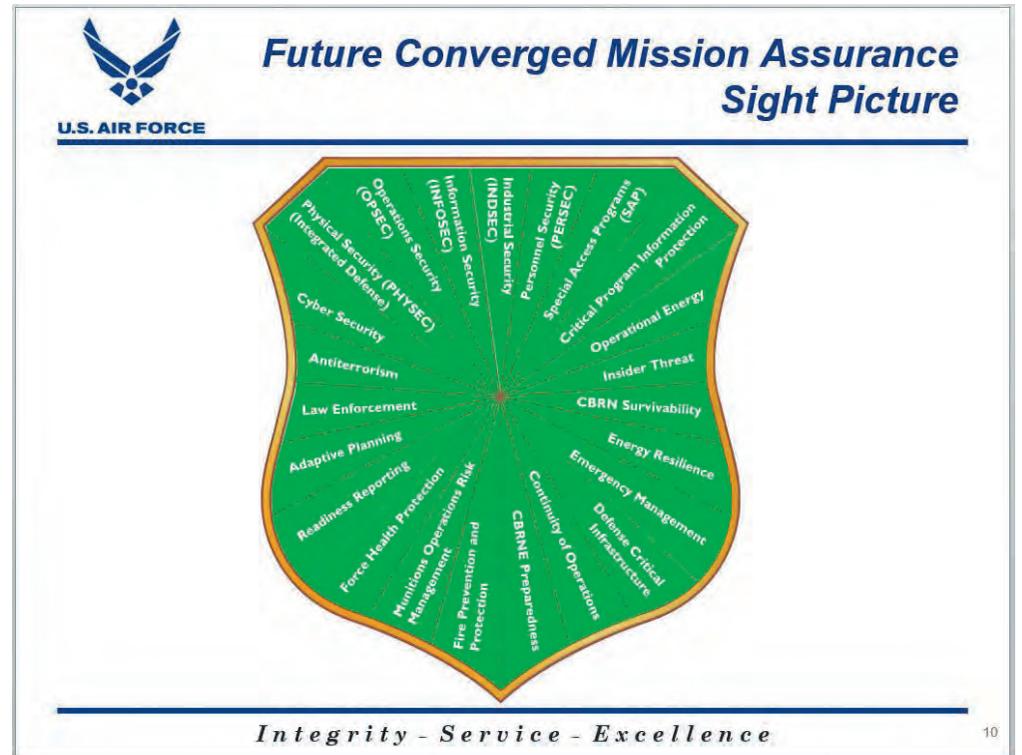

In accordance with Department of Defense regulations 5200.43 and 3020.40, this program integrates mission assurance and protection disciplines for commanders to efficiently calculate threats and costs to those under their care in a more streamlined manner.

“The program is designed to provide the commanders with an ‘all threats, all hazards’ picture of what’s going on in his or her installation,” said Scott Wobbe, Air Mobility Command director of information protection. “When there’s a vulnerability on an installation and we come up with a course of action, we’re able to more accurately assess it.”

Assisting wing assessments and commander’s abilities to quantify possible protection allows Airmen to help out in their own way.

“The biggest thing for Airmen is to open their aperture and think about how their job affects those around them and the priorities of their commander,” Wobbe said. “As we transition from compliance to risk management, we will look at how our decisions affect the mission as a whole.”

Protecting our people

By Linda Benjamin

Sexual Assault Coordinator

LITTLE ROCK AIR FORCE BASE, Ark. — April is recognized by both military and civilian communities as Sexual Assault Awareness and Prevention Month.

The campaign provides communities an opportunity to continue improving outreach and support to victims as well as expanding prevention efforts in the fight against sexual assault.

The Little Rock Air Force Base Sexual Assault Prevention & Response team, in partnership with the Alcohol & Drug Abuse Prevention & Treatment Program and the Drug Demand Reduction Program, held the first Courage, Leadership, Education, Advocacy and Respect challenge April 27.

The CLEAR challenge originated at Hurlburt Field, Florida in April 2013 and has expanded to installations across the force.

The challenge is a course which tests participants physically and mentally in which every element symbolizes the effects of alcohol or sexual assault. Every team member has a specific purpose in the group. For example, one team member was chosen to wear a weighted vest throughout the course symbolizing the unseen burden a victim of sexual assault carries and how it affects the mission and other team members. Another team member was chosen to wear a pair of drunk goggles throughout the course symbolizing having to look after an impaired wingman and how it affects everyone.

Did you know victims of sexual abuse are three times more likely than the average person to suffer from depression and six times more likely to suffer from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder? Some sexual assault victims try to cope with traumatic memories and unwanted anxiety or depression through substance abuse. Some studies report that sexual abuse victims are 13 times more likely to abuse alcohol and 26 times more likely to abuse drugs than those who have not been sexually abused.

Our goal with the CLEAR challenge was to strengthen commitments to actively support a climate of dignity and respect, recognize and embrace the values and contributions of all members, and have some fun along the way!

The Air Force is a family. Respecting each other, protecting our Wingman, and upholding the Core Values are top priorities in the Air Force and on Little Rock AFB.

There are numerous helping agencies and programs on every Air Force installation to provide care and support. Together, we can eliminate sexual assault and substance abuse from our communities. Contact the SAPR office at 501-987-7272 for 24/7 assistance. Another great resource is Airmen Against Drunk Driving at 501-987-2233.

University Center staff adheres to OPSEC

By Airman 1st Class Grace Nichols
19th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Effective immediately, the University Center staff at Little Rock Air Force Base will incorporate a briefing focusing on operational security into mandated tuition assistance briefings about degree guidelines.

The intention is to educate students on the requirement to clear all academic papers through the 19th Airlift Wing Public Affairs pertaining to an Air Force mission in order to protect against inadvertent release or distribution of sensitive documents.

All six universities housed within the University Center have been directed to brief students and staff with the same information.

According to Air Force Instruction 35-102, the public affairs organization, which has security and policy review authority, will clear unclassified information of local or regional interest. This includes speeches, presentations, papers, multimedia and visual information material and information proposed for release to a publicly accessible web site with the exception of Air Force publications.

“For the most part the college experience will stay the same,” said Patrick Loggins, 19th Force Support

Airman 1st Class Raquelle Hemphill, 19th Force Support Squadron relocations apprentice, takes notes during a tuition assistance briefing April 5 at the University Center on Little Rock Air Force Base. The University Center staff at Little Rock Air Force Base is incorporating a briefing focusing on operational security into mandated tuition assistance briefings about degree guidelines.

Squadron education specialist. “I believe that most of the students know to adhere to current OPSEC policies, however with this new emphasis we will bring awareness to the young Airmen too.”

Public Affairs officers who suspect unauthorized disclosures of classified and controlled unclassified information will report the occurrence to the 19th AW Information Protection Office in accordance with AFI 16-1404, Air Force Information Security Program.

For more information about the policy, call 501-987-3418.

Thank you for continued support

Our combat airlift mission can only be accomplished with all of our Team Little Rock partners, including our Active Duty, Reserve, and Guard Airmen, their families, our civilian Airmen, our community and industry partners, as well as our retirees and their families. Without the support from our team, we would not be able to project and sustain agile combat airlift across the world nor bring to our nation's defense the right effects at the right place at the right time. As we continue to enhance our operational effectiveness and further develop both our combat airlift capabilities and our Airmen through both formal and informal training, inspections and exercises, we are grateful for the continued support and patience from our partners both on base and in the community.

Respectfully,
19th Airlift Wing Command Team

SAVES SAVES Level 2 - Drug Use

"The SAVES program is very similar to the force protection conditions," said Stephanie Wynn, 19th Airlift Wing community support coordinator. "There are three levels that are colored coded: green, yellow and red depending on the amount of incidents occurring within a 60-day rolling period." As a reminder, when notified of a Drug-Demand Reduction test you have a two-hour window to report. Failure to show within this window will result in administrative actions.
